Charges Of Laxity Sting NIH

Sexual harassment, poor oversight alleged by workers

WASHINGTON | Women at the National Institutes of Health faced sexual intimidation and repeated disregard of their concerns for the welfare of patients in AIDS experiments, according to testimony by two senior female officers and documents gathered by investigators.

Betsy Smith, a longtime medical officer at the government's premier medical research agency, alleges that the harassment and disregard for federal safety regulations are so widespread that employees are now afraid to hold up experiments even if they see a safety problem. Her testimony and other documents were obtained by The Associated Press.

Sworn testimony by Smith and Mary Anne Luzar, the chief compliance officer for AIDS research, as well as e-mails involving more staffers and several bosses, paint a picture of a sometimes raunchy atmosphere at an agency regarded for its pristine science.

Smith and Luzar stepped forward in recent weeks and expanded upon allegations made last year by an agency whistleblower, Dr. Jonathan Fishbein. Fishbein alleges he is being fired as the AIDS division's chief of human research protection because he raised concerns about patient safety and shoddy science. The NIH says he was fired for poor performance.

The Senate and the Health and Human Services Department are investigating the allegations. In addition, officials told the AP, the NIH is conducting an internal investigation on sexual harassment. JOHN SOLOMON (AP)

SPEED | The Really Fast Lane Drivers on a Michigan interstate got a surprise Thursday from a construction message board. The sign, which for weeks had been alerting drivers to impending construction, instead read: "speed limit 100 mph go go go." The speed limit in the area is 70 miles per hour. Officials said the board, which was the only one affected, is controlled remotely by a computer through a subcontractor; that company is looking into who changed the board and how. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

PARASITES

A Sinus Problem That Really Sucked

Doctors have removed a leech from the nose of a Hong Kong woman after she swam and washed her face in a stream, the Hong Kong Medical Journal said in its April issue. The woman had been complaining of nose bleeds and an occasional sensation that something was blocking her left nostril. Her family doctor noticed a "brownish mass" in her nose but couldn't remove it because of heavy bleeding. Doctors later identified it as a bloodsucking leech, but had trouble pulling it out because the 2-inch creature had retracted far into the nostril. Part of the leech was in a passage of her nasal cavity and a larger segment was in her sinus cavity. Doctors used a nasal spray to anesthetize the leech, which made it easier to remove, and pulled it out with forceps. (AP)

DRIVING

License and Sensibility

A man drove his car into a wall at the Division of Motor Vehicles building in Anchorage, Alaska, on Thursday, then walked in and renewed his driver's license, police said. The car went up over a sidewalk, denting the building's metal siding, cracking the inside of the wall and startling workers. The man then backed up, exited the car and walked into the DMV like nothing happened, an employee said. By the time police came, the man—who apologized to a clerk for having "tapped" the building—had renewed his license. Police said he was driving while impaired by medication and charged him with driving under the influence. (AP)

Lawmakers Press DeLay on Ethics

Republicans increase pressure on House GOP

WASHINGTON | Private GOP tensions over Tom DeLay's ethics controversy spilled into public Sunday, as a Senate leader called on DeLay to explain his actions and one House Republican demanded the majority leader's resignation.

"Tom's conduct is hurting the Republican Party, is hurting this Republican majority and it is hurting any Republican who is up for re-election," Rep. Chris Shays, R-Conn., told The Associated Press in an interview, calling for DeLay to step down as majority leader.

DeLay, R-Texas, who was admonished by the House ethics committee last year, has been dogged by new reports about his overseas travel funded by special interests, campaign payments to family members and connections to a lobbyist who is under criminal investigation.

A moderate Republican from Connecticut who has battled with his party's leadership on a number of issues, Shays said efforts by the House GOP members to change ethics rules to protect DeLay only make the party look bad.

Rick Santorum, the No. 3 Republican in the Senate, said Sunday that DeLay needs to explain his conduct to the public.

"I think he has to come forward and lay out what he did and why he did it and let the people then judge for themselves," Santorum told ABC's "This Week." "But from everything I've heard, again, from the comments and responding to those, is everything he's done was according to the law."

Shays

DeLay's spokesman, Dan Allen, told AP that the congressman "looks forward to the opportunity of sitting down with the ethics committee chairman and ranking member to get the facts out and to dispel the fiction and innuendo that's being launched at him by

Santorum

House Democrats and their liberal allies." The ethics committee has been in limbo since March, when its five Democrats balked at adopting Republican-developed rules.

Costs, Demand Drive Gas Prices Up 19 Cents

LOS ANGELES | Gas prices soared an average 19 cents in the past three weeks due to lingering high crude oil prices, growing demand and higher refining costs, an industry analyst said Sunday.

The average retail price for all three grades increased 18.95 cents to $2.32 per gallon between March 18 and Friday, said Trilby Lundberg, who publishes the semi-monthly Lundberg Survey of 7,000 gas stations around the country.

The most popular grade, self-serve regular, was priced at $2.29 a gallon, while customers paid $2.38 for midgrade. Premium averaged $2.48 a gallon for the period.

Crude prices, which reached $58 last week, are likely to stay above $50 a barrel into next year, Lundberg said. "It's very possible that unless crude oil prices show another upsurge, then gas prices may have hit their peak already or will soon," she said.

The highest average gas price in the nation for regular unleaded was $2.62 a gallon in Bakersfield, Calif. The lowest price was $2.06 in Newark, N.J. ALICIA CHANG (AP)

Blizzard Pounds Colorado

Travelers stranded as spring storm cancels flights, snarls traffic

DENVER | Hundreds of travelers were stranded at the Denver airport and along highways Sunday as a blizzard blew across eastern Colorado with wet, heavy snow.

Seven to 10 inches of snow was forecast in Denver and up to 30 inches was possible in the foothills west of Denver, Colorado Springs and Boulder, the National Weather Service said.

Fat, moisture-laden snowflakes were blown sideways by wind gusting to 30 mph. Xcel Energy reported that 10,000 customers were without power in the heavily populated Front Range region.

All airlines canceled departing flights from Denver International Airport during the morning, airport spokeswoman Laura Jackson said. Hundreds of people were stranded

The storm, which struck western Colorado on Saturday, was expected to blow out of the area late Sunday, mostly turning to rain over the Plains. ROBERT WELLER (AP)

For Dole, New Injuries Echo Old War Wounds

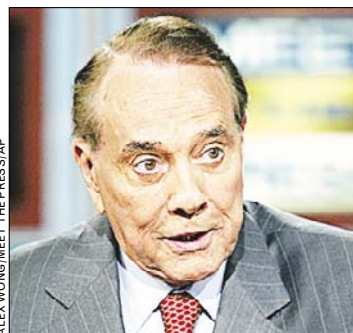

Ex-senator describes painful recovery, new health woes in book

TOPEKA, KAN. | He lay in the dirt for hours on Hill 913, drifting in and out of consciousness, unable to move or feel anything below his neck.

Bob Dole's spinal cord was damaged, his right arm immobilized by the mortar, shell or machine gun blast — "whatever it was, I'll never know" — in the mountains of northern Italy less than a month before World War II ended in Europe.

In his new book, "One Soldier's Story," which goes on sale Tuesday, the man who went on to serve 35 years in Congress and run for president returns to his war experiences and long recovery.

Dole reveals in the book that he never regained full use of his left hand either, a fact he calls "one of the best-kept secrets" about himself.

Ex-Sen. Bob Dole says a recent fall left him briefly without the use of both arms.

Dole also recounts a serious fall in his Washington apartment this past January that sent him to a hospital with internal bleeding, apparently linked to blood thinner he was taking after hip replacement surgery.

During his 40-day stay, he lost some of the use of his left arm and hand. He described the experience of being temporarily without both arms as humiliating — and similar to his days after the war. (AP)

Cardinals Stay Mum Before Conclave

Men who will choose next pope stick to scripts

VATICAN CITY | Pilgrims gazed forlornly at the third-floor window where Pope John Paul II traditionally appeared on Sundays and cardinals held to their vow of public silence ahead of next week's secret vote on a successor.

The cardinals who celebrated Masses around Rome confined their remarks to tightly scripted homilies after pledging Saturday to make no more public statements betraying their thinking before selecting a new leader for the world's 1.1 billion Roman Catholics.

The lack of access to the red-robed "princes of the church" was unlikely to stem speculation about John Paul's successor, with worldwide interest peaking in what could be a tight competition between reformers and conservatives.

The 115 cardinals under 80 and therefore eligible to vote will begin meeting April 18 in the Sistine Chapel for the secret conclave to elect a new pope.

Meanwhile, pilgrims lined up in a pelting rain to visit St. Peter's Basilica, where John Paul was laid to rest Friday alongside the remains of other popes through the ages. The grotto deep beneath the basilica holding John Paul's body remained closed, and the Holy See was expected to say Monday when it would reopen.

Throughout his 26-year pontificate, John Paul gave public audiences on Wednesdays and Sundays, greeting the faithful from his third-floor window overlooking the square.

His last public appearance was March 30, three days before he died at the age of 84, when he made a dramatic attempt to say a few words but managed only a raspy sound, his mouth open and his face contorted in pain. WILLIAM J. KOLE (AP)

GROUND OF WAR: Jews pray at the Western Wall in Jerusalem on Sunday. Thousands of Israeli police sealed off the flashpoint holy site to foil Sunday's march by ultra-nationalist Jews. Palestinian militants had said the march could threaten the ceasefire.

Abductions, Threats In Baghdad

Pakistani kidnapped; Al Qaeda in Iraq says it killed police official

BAGHDAD | Two groups claimed Sunday to have kidnapped a Pakistani embassy employee and a senior Iraqi police official during separate abductions in Baghdad.

The previously unknown Omar bin Khattab group claimed responsibility for kidnapping Malik Mohammed Javed, a consular employee, Pakistan's Foreign Ministry said. Javed went missing Saturday after he left his Baghdad home.

Also Sunday, the terrorist group al Qaeda in Iraq claimed to have kidnapped and killed Najaf police Brig. Gen. Bassem Mohammed Kadhim al-Jazaari.

Interior Ministry official Capt. Ahmed Ismael said al-Jazaari was kidnapped Saturday in western Baghdad. He had no other details.

In a statement, the group also rejected interim President Jalal Talabani's bid to reach out to Iraqi insurgents. "You agents of the Jews and the Christians, we have nothing for you but the sword," it said. (AP)

Anti-Japan Protests Persist in China

Tokyo officials object as textbook dissent threatens relations

BEIJING | Anti-Japan protests over a controversial new Japanese textbook erupted in southern China on Sunday, a day after a violent rally in Beijing. Tokyo demanded an apology and better protection for its citizens as a simmering diplomatic row threatened ties between the Asian heavyweights.

Demonstrations against Japan have spread since Tokyo last week approved new textbooks that critics say fail to address the Japanese military's brutal wartime invasion and occupation of Asian nations in the first half of the 20th century.

On Saturday, about 1,000 demonstrators threw rocks at the Japanese Embassy in Beijing after a noisy rally by more than 6,000 people in the university district.

PAST AND PRESENT: Chinese protesters with a defaced poster of Emperor Hirohito, Japan's former ruler, in Shenzhen on Sunday.

China said Sunday it had ordered anti-Japanese protesters in Beijing to stay "calm and sane" and mobilized extra police to maintain public order, but Japanese officials complained that not enough was done.

Protests continued Sunday, with some 10,000 demonstrators surrounding a Japanese-run supermarket in the southern city of Shenzhen, said Ide Keiji, a spokesman at Japan's embassy in Beijing.

About 3,000 people also marched toward the Japanese Consulate General in Guangzhou, said a spokesman with the Guangzhou municipal government who refused to give his name. ALEXA OLESEN (AP)

4th Person Dies From Cairo Blast; Bomber Identified

CAIRO | A Frenchman wounded in a bombing in Cairo has died, raising the death toll to four, Egyptian police said Sunday, and Egyptian investigators said they have identified the bomber.

The blast in a market in old Cairo on Thursday evening also killed a French woman, an American man and an unidentified person whom police suspect was the bomber.

An Egyptian investigator said on condition of anonymity that the bomber has been identified through fingerprints and DNA. He said the man, in his early 20s, is from a Cairo suburb. Three suspected accomplices are in custody, he said.

Egyptian officials have sought to limit the potential damage to the tourism industry. They have stressed that so far there is no evidence the bomber belonged to a militant group. (AP)

No Tsunami, Lots Of Anxiety After Sumatra Quake

JAKARTA, INDONESIA | A strong undersea earthquake rocked the Indonesian island of Sumatra on Sunday, sending thousands of people fleeing from their homes in panic, but no tsunami was triggered, seismologists said.

The 6.8-magnitude temblor smashed scores of windows in the Sumatra was devastated by the Dec. 26 earthquake and tsunami that killed nearly 183,000 people in 11 countries and left another 129,000 missing.

The region has since been hit by daily aftershocks that send people fleeing from their homes. On March 28, an 8.7-magnitude quake killed at least 647 people on Nias Island, which lies close to Padang. (AP)

MS-13 Members Could Get Death

ALEXANDRIA, VA. | In a federal courtroom this week, prosecutors will ask a single jury to extinguish the lives of four alleged members of one of Virginia's most vicious gangs.

If one needs any proof that law enforcement is taking a hard-line stance against the region's gang problem, look no further than the cases of U.S. vs. Rivera, U.S.

vs. Grande, U.S. vs. Cisneros and U.S. vs. Garcia-Orellana, with opening statements scheduled to begin Monday.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty against all four alleged members of the Latino gang Mara Salvatrucha, or MS-13, for the murder of Brenda Paz, a former gang member herself who was to have been a witness in a murder trial against Denis Rivera, her one-time boyfriend.

The trial is just a small part of a regional crackdown on MS-13 and other gangs that have been implicated in a series of high-profile attacks in northern Virginia. In several recent incidents, victims have been hacked by machetes and had fingers severed from their hands.

Allan Doody, the special agent-in-charge of the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement's Washington field office said it's clear that recent anti-gang efforts have disrupted gang activity, with as many as 50 gang members from the area arrested in the last few months.

? SINCE YOU ASKED

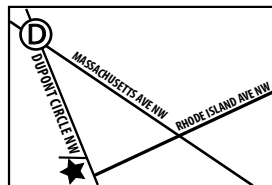

Q Will Metro be putting more SmarTrip machines in the stations? The lines are always seven- to 10-people deep.

A The situation could get brighter soon. Metro plans in the next fiscal year, which begins July 1, to relocate 43 SmarTrip-capable machines to stops with the highest demand, after upgrading them to accept credit and debit payments, instead of only cash, a spokesman said. Which stops they'll be moved to has yet to be determined. Meanwhile, Metro expects to finish relocating 18 other SmarTrip machines (which accept all three forms of payment) to busy stops by May 1, including several terminal stations. Daily Protest Eases Up With Passing of Pope

WASHINGTON | His angry sign boards are temporarily gone, but John Wojnowski's inner rage remains.

Wojnowski has been protesting against sexual abuse in the Catholic church outside the Vatican's embassy on Massachusetts Avenue NW nearly every afternoon for seven years. His well-known daily protest included placards with slogans like "Pedophilia: Catholic Church's corporate crime."

His vigil continued late last week following the death of Pope John Paul II, but with a softer tone.

"I was a Polish Catholic, like the pope," Wojnowski said Friday, the day John Paul was buried at the Vatican. "Out of respect, I took a break from the signs for a few days."

But he remained on a corner outside the embassy, waving to passing motorists who honked in recognition.

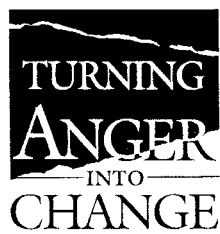

John Wojnowski has protested outside the Vatican embassy for seven years.

The experience in 1958 has haunted him since, he said, spawning years of depression. Wojnowski wrote to church officials seeking compensation, but was denied, he was told, because the Italian priest he had accused of molesting him nearly 40 years earlier had died.

So he went public and has vowed to return every day until he receives compensation or until he dies.

"I think it's fine to go ahead and say goodbye and so forth, but I think you say goodbye when you think you can still play a little bit."

— Jack Nicklaus, who said on Saturday that he will not play in the Masters ever again after 45 tries.

At Last, Woods Wins the Masters

Tiger wins his fourth green jacket by besting DiMarco in playoff

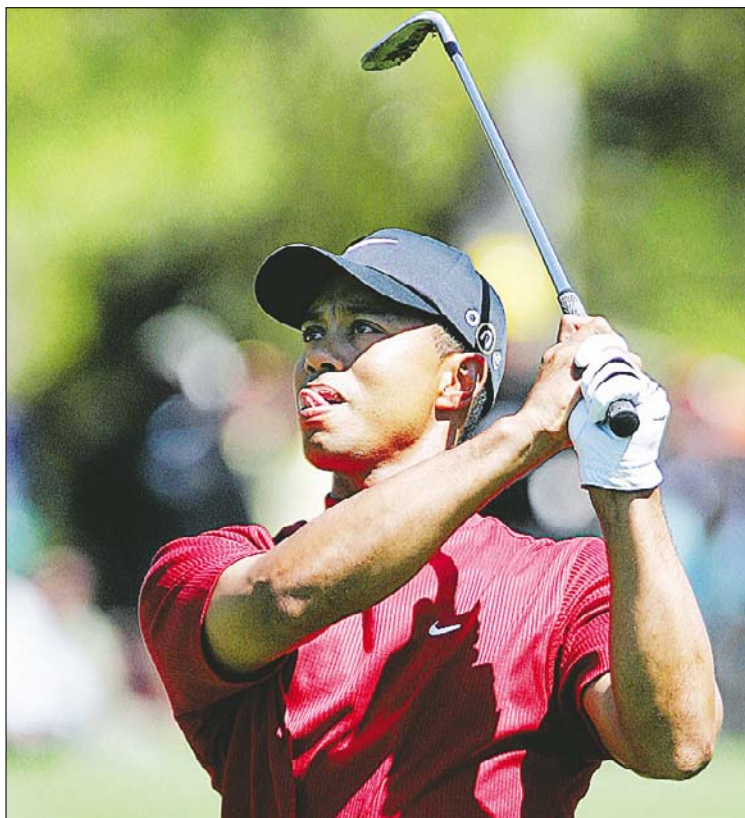

GOLF | Tiger Woods is the Masters champion once again, turning back a surprising challenge Sunday with a shot of sheer magic and a birdie putt to win a playoff he never expected.

Aspectacular finish of birdies and bogeys finally ended when Woods produced the most important shot of all — a 15-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole to capture his fourth green jacket and finally put away the gritty Chris DiMarco.

Woods knew it was over when the ball was a foot from the hole, taking two steps to the left as a smile broke out on his face and his right fist punched the air with fury.

Everything else about this Masters was up in the air to the very end.

First came the most improbable birdie on the par-3 16th, when Woods skipped his chip shot up the slope and watched it crawl 25 feet down to the cup, where it paused for 2 full seconds before dropping.

Then came an even bigger surprise. The greatest closer in golf looked like a first-timer at Augusta National, making a mess out of the last two holes to finish with two bogeys and allow DiMarco one more chance.

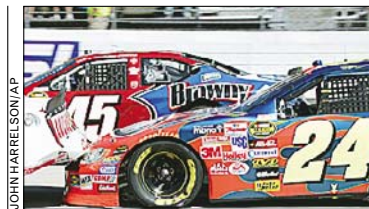

Woods made sure that was all he got.

DiMarco again came up short of the green, and chipped up for a tap-in par. He took his hat off and ran his hand through his hair, crouched and kept looking up at Woods and down at his feet, afraid to watch, perhaps knowing what was about to happen.

Woods closed with a 1-under 71 and won for the second time in a playoff at a major. The Masters gave him nine majors in his career, halfway home to the standard set by Jack Nicklaus.

But this didn't look like the same guy who won his first eight majors.

Jeff Gordon, 24, rides up under the bumper of Mike Wallace on Sunday.

In a Flash, Gordon Is Victorious

AUTO RACING | Jeff Gordon showed that he might be the new king of short-track racing Sunday, coming from four laps down early on to win his sixth NASCAR Nextel Cup race at Martinsville Speedway.

Fourth on a restart with 46 laps to go, Gordon wasted no time. He followed Mark Martin past Ryan Newman on the 461st lap, moved into second place three laps later and passed Sterling Marlin for the lead with 34 laps remaining.

From then on, it was smooth sailing to his 71st career victory and second in six races this year.

For Gordon and all of Hendrick Motorsports, it was an emotional day. The last time the series was at this track, a plane carrying 10 friends and family of the organization crashed nearby, killing everyone on board.

"There's something special about this place and we lost so many incredible people ... I think it's only fitting for us to get this victory," Gordon said. HANK KURZ JR. (AP)

Newspaper Apologizes to Jackson

DOPING | A California newspaper being sued by former pro football and baseball star Bo Jackson apologized to him Sunday and retracted part of a story saying he used steroids.

In a story published March 24 under the Inland Valley Daily Bulletin's sports editor Jim Mohr's byline, dietary expert Ellen Coleman was quoted as saying she knew personally that "Bo Jackson lost his hip because of anabolic abuse."

Jackson responded last week by suing the newspaper. Coleman later denied making any statements about Jackson. (AP)

Nationals Shut Out, Again

Marlins' Beckett goes the distance in 8-0 win

NATIONALS | Josh Beckett is starting the season the way he finished 2003, which bodes well for the Florida Marlins.

Beckett (2-0) pitched a five-hitter to extend his streak of scoreless innings to 15, and Juan Encarnacion hit his second grand slam of the week to help Florida beat the Washington Nationals

8-0 Sunday — two days after the Marlins shut out the Nats, 9-0.

The complete game was just the second for Beckett since he pitched a five-hit shutout to beat the New York Yankees in Game 6 of the 2003 World Series.

Beckett walked one, struck out 11 and retired 14 consecutive batters before Jose Vidro doubled with one out in the ninth. The right-hander pitched six shutout innings on opening day.

Until the seventh, Beckett was locked in a scoreless duel with John Patterson (0-1). Pinch-hitter Paul Lo Duca broke a scoreless tie with a two-run double in the seventh. Florida added six runs in the eighth, capped by Encarnacion's third career slam. He also hit one in the Marlins' opener. STEVEN WINE (AP)

Vintage Pedro Gives Mets Win

BASEBALL | Pedro Martinez pitched a two-hitter and the New York Mets finally got their first win of the season Sunday, overcoming John Smoltz's 15 strikeouts in a 6-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Carlos Beltran hit a go-ahead homer off Smoltz in the eighth, and Cliff Floyd and David Wright connected later in the inning to send Willie Randolph to his first victory as a manager.

Martinez (1-0) retired his final 16 batters, struck out nine and walked only one. After the bullpen cost him a win on opening day in Cincinnati, the Mets' new ace finished this one himself for his 43rd career complete game.

Smoltz (0-2) tied his Atlanta record for strikeouts and led 1-0 through seven innings. But Jose Reyes led off the eighth with a single and moved up on Miguel Cairo's sacrifice before Beltran drove a 2-1 pitch over the right-field fence. (AP)

O's Knock Out Pavano, Yankees

BASEBALL | Yankees pitcher Carl Pavano was hit on the head by Melvin Mora's line drive and left New York's 7-2 loss to the Baltimore Orioles with a mild concussion in his second start on Sunday.

Rodrigo Lopez (2-0), meanwhile, didn't allow a hit through four innings and led 6-0 going to the bottom of the fifth. Lopez allowed six hits in eight innings, struck out eight and walked two.

Baltimore, which had 14 hits, went ahead in the second on an RBI single by Luis Matos after Rafael Palmeiro stole second, getting a big jump on Pavano. (AP)

BABY BOOM: The Chicago Bulls, known as the "baby bulls" because of the number of first and second-year players on the roster, are heading to the playoffs for the first time since Michael Jordan first retired in 1998. The Bulls clinched a spot with a win over the Raptors Saturday.

Everyone's Beating the Wiz

Washington buckles under pressure, fights for spot in postseason

WIZARDS | The Washington Wizards are in a playoff chase for the first time in many years, and they have no idea how to handle it.

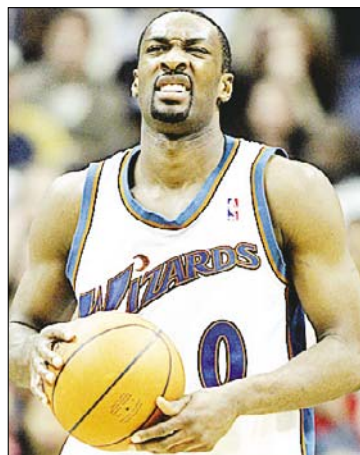

After sitting comfortably for most of the season in solid position for the No. 4 playoff seed in the Eastern Conference, the Wizards are fading fast in April crunchtime. They've lost five straight, and suddenly it's no longer such a sure thing that they will make the postseason for the first time since 1997.

"I don't think we realize what it takes to get it done in April, going into May," said Antawn Jamison, one of only two players on the active roster with playoff experience. "It's a learning experience."

The stretch drive hit a new low Saturday night, when the Wizards opened a five-game homestand against Philadelphia. The 76ers played without Allen Iverson and Chris Webber, yet Washington fell behind by 21 in the first half, then blew a 13-point fourth-quarter lead before losing 112-106.

The Wizards have fallen to sixth place in the conference, and their 3 1/2-game lead over ninth place New Jersey will no longer be a secure cushion if the losing streak doesn't end soon.

The Wizards have six games remaining: three against playoff contenders (Chicago, Cleveland, New Jersey) and three against also-rans (Milwaukee, Charlotte, New York). Monday's game against the Bucks would seem a good opportunity to reverse the momentum, but that also seemed the case going into Saturday's game.

"Our goals: We wanted to improve as a team, we wanted to have a winning season, we wanted to make the playoffs," said coach Eddie Jordan. "So, step-by-step, we're on target." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Heat Goes Cold Without O'Neal

NBA | Shaquille O'Neal is the sick one. Without him, the Miami Heat are doing plenty of suffering.

Richard Hamilton scored 17 points, Tayshaun Prince added 16 and the Detroit Pistons ended the Heat's franchise-record 18-game winning streak with an 80-72 victory on Sunday.

With O'Neal out for a third straight game because of a stomach virus, the Heat set season-lows for scoring in a game, half and quarter, established another low by shooting 34.6 percent and have lost two straight for just the fourth time all season. (AP)

Motorola: Razr Sharp

Super-thin cell phone signals effort to pay attention to fashion

PHONES | Technology used to trump good looks at Motorola. Geeks like Jim Wicks were impressed with its well-engineered products but winced at their industrial look and relentlessly black and gray colors. "I thought, 'Wow, great products, but why are they so ugly?'" recalled Wick, now Motorola's chief phone designer.

Today, plain is out and sleek and stylish are in, as a new focus on design wins back customers at Motorola. The symbol of the resurgence is the ultra-thin Razr, whose success stamped the company as the trendsetter in innovative design. The Razr has been on a roll as consumers embrace its growing tools — camera, e-mail, music, speaker-phone and shrinking size.

The $450 Razr embodies "a departure from the stodgy, engineering-driven" Motorola image, analyst John Jackson said. Those core values may make for a strong foundation, but they don't necessarily resonate in an age where consumers want their choice of cell phone to define cool.

LORD OF THE RINGS: The quad-band Razr V3 isn't just a phone, it's a color camera, Bluetooth wireless device and instant messenger. Plus, it's as thin as a crepe.

Motorola began putting more emphasis on style and fashion about four years ago. It's all about making consumer tastes the priority instead of technology, said Wicks.

"Now the starting point is 'What does the consumer want?' and then apply the technology to that," he said. Motorola is now scoring points with the young, edgy crowd.

The company's Triplets phones delivered the first success from the new approach in 2004. But the release of the flashy Razr V3 sent the loudest message that Motorola was back. Shiny, angular and an implausible 1/2-inch thin, the quad-band phone packs a color camera, Bluetooth wireless technology, instant messaging and unique ring tones into a 3.3-ounce clamshell design.

Due this year are the next products from the Razr "family": The oval PEBL V6 or Pebble, designed to look like jewelry, and the SLVR V8 or Sliver, a non-clamshell version of the Razr. Both will enable wireless music downloads.

Dough Doctor | Financial Planner

BRIAN JONES, 31

JOB: Financial planner and vice president at Cooper, Jones & McLeland in Fairfax, Va.

SALARY: $125,000 to $150,000. His fee is based on clients' assets.

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in public administration from George Mason University

WHAT HE DOES: Jones helps his 130 to 150 clients reach their personal and business-related financial goals. Though he specializes in small businesses and non-profits, Jones has clients from all over the financial map; retirement planning is particularly in demand.

Often finances are "the last thing you want to look at" after a day at work or on the weekend, but "it's one of the most important things that you can neglect," he said. And many do. Some clients "will literally show up in your office with a big box full of stuff," and the process of elucidating a person's financial history begins. "We dig deep, we come to a lot of data," he said. "It's almost like seeing your doctor." He and a small staff regularly monitor clients' progress and meet with them annually to make any needed adjustments.

WOULD YOU WANT HIS JOB? "When was the last time that you were at a party and heard people talking about their net worth?" Jones pointed out. Discussing personal finances can be a highly uncomfortable experience for clients. They might try to withhold some details, which is "a total waste of everyone's time." Jones also needs to keep unattainable "big bubble" goals grounded in reality. "Sometimes I have to pull out a really big pin and pop it," he said.

HOW YOU CAN GET HIS JOB:

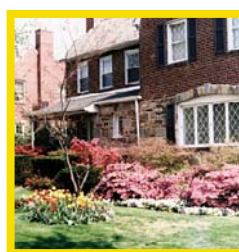

Certification through the Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards (cfp.net) isn't necessary to practice, though Jones strongly recommends it. Certification-seekers must meet the Board's education requirements, pass a 10-hour, three-part exam, have at least three years of related experience and complete 30 hours of continuing education coursework every two years.

Life at Work

AMY JOYCE's column appears Sundays in The Washington Post. She chats every Tuesday at 11 a.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

I'm leaving my current job soon (on good terms) and am wondering if it's appropriate for me to suggest to my supervisor who should be taking over my work until they find a replacement.

If there is someone you think could handle your workload, I think most bosses would appreciate the insight. You're not telling your boss who to hire, necessarily. You're just offering your opinion, which is a good one considering you're there and experiencing it first hand. This is the time most folks leave a very detailed memo or have a meeting with the boss to go over everything that is done in this position. Your insight will be appreciated.

Do you think it's rude to have going-away parties in the middle of the work day in an open office area and not invite everyone?

What do you mean by party? Are you thinking it's rude that you weren't invited and long for a slice of cake, or rude that it's in the middle of the day and loud? I think it's fine, as long as the going away is a little fete that doesn't last long.

DESERT SON: Matthew McConaughey's "Sahara" heated up the weekend box office, debuting with $18.5 million. Audiences gave a cool reception to "Fever Pitch," the weekend's other new wide release. "Sin City," slipped to second place.

SHE DIDN'T INHALE: John Kassir corrupts Kristen Bell's Mary in the cable-TV adaptation of the musical "Reefer Madness."

A Career High

Kristen Bell lights up over 'Reefer Madness'

HIDDEN TALENTS | Even fans of Kristen Bell's starring turn on the freshman UPN teen drama series "Veronica Mars" may not know the Detroit native has a background in musical theater. Bell, 24, will soon put her other talents on display in "Reefer Madness," Showtime's first movie musical, airing this Saturday night at 8 p.m.

Directed by Andy Fickman

and based on the stage production, the tongue-in-cheek musical is inspired by the notorious 1936 anti-marijuana film of the same name. Bell reprises the role she played in the show's off-Broadway run in 2001: Mary Lane, a squeaky-clean high-schooler who gets mixed up in a twisted, downward spiral of reefer, sex, murder and mayhem.

What were you smoking on the set?

WeweresmokingAndyFickman, in all honesty, Andy Fickman's love. He never asked any questions about drug experiences. But what he did say is, at least for the "Reefer Madness" onstage, "I want you to approach this like they did when they made the movie: You are all B-[list] or C-[list] movie stars and the government has approached you to make the most important film of the decade."

So you're portraying an actress?

Exactly. It's a story within a story. The people that played those characters thought that this was going to change the youth of America — until the end of shooting where they realized that it was going to be cornier than they anticipated.

What are your thoughts about the film's depiction of drug use?

Ultimately, I think it's secondary that it's about marijuana. It's beside the point. The movie is a comment on a time in our history when the powers that be [got] involved with the media [and] were taking advantage of the American public.

Would you care to discuss your own experience with drugs?

(Laughs) I'm a very good girl. I'm not going to comment on that.

What were the differences between the stage and filmed versions?

The main difference was that we had so much more to work with when we did the movie. We had amazing sets and costumes.

Can you talk about your musical theater background?

I was trained operatically as a soprano when I was 13. We used to have a solo and ensemble competition at my high school, which was all classical stuff. I loved doing that. I look at it now and go, wow, I was kind of a nerd. ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Talent to Burn

Hot Hot Heat's minimalist glam rock is on fire on 'Elevator'

MUSIC | Hot Hot Heat's latest release, "Elevator" (Sire), is good good stuff. The band's daring guitar and vocal work — a jangle of minimalist rock — is understated at times, and soars in other spots.

To be certain, the British Columbia quartet's music is mostly delivered in fervent fits — they pounce about their songs with endless energy and lead singer Steve Bays offers the closest thing to a "plaintive wail" in the business. He's not shrill, but unforgettably high-pitched and demanding of attention.

None of that would work, however, without the catchy songwriting and melodies that Hot Hot Heat deliver.

The band established itself in 2002 with the well-recieved "Make Up The Breakdown." But "Elevator" is even tighter, and songs like "You Owe Me An IOU" offer a pleasant showcase of the band's knack for an unforgettable hook.

'ELEVATOR' GOING UP: The Heat is on throughout their sophisticated new recording.

The title track "Elevator" is nicely layered with lush guitar and some unidentifiable but pleasant-enough orchestral effect. It's slower than most of the tracks, but hits an emotional sweet spot. This is the modern version of glam rock. There's less hair, more style and — if you're as good as Hot Hot Heat — whipsmart songwriting that will set you apart from the pack.

Dale Watson: Big Country

Travis Tritt got you down? Country music lost its cool? Don't throw in your 10-gallon hat just yet. Look no further than the staunch old-school honky tonky country singer Dale Watson and his brand of stripped-down, thick-skinned confessional country.

Dale Watson spins firsthand tales about mean women and bad nights.

Psychedelic Southern Rock: The Little Feat That Could

The Southern fried-blues band is still cementing its semi-underground status. Little Feat keeps on truckin' at the Birchmere tonight, playing the surreal country rock that is the band's greatest strength and probably its marketing weakness.

A Cure for Pomposity

A doctor's med-zine pokes fun at patients, diseases and MDs

IRREVERENCE | You might think that the Placebo Journal's outrageous humor detailing the weird-but-true foibles of the medical profession should be confined to the privacy of the doctors' lounge.

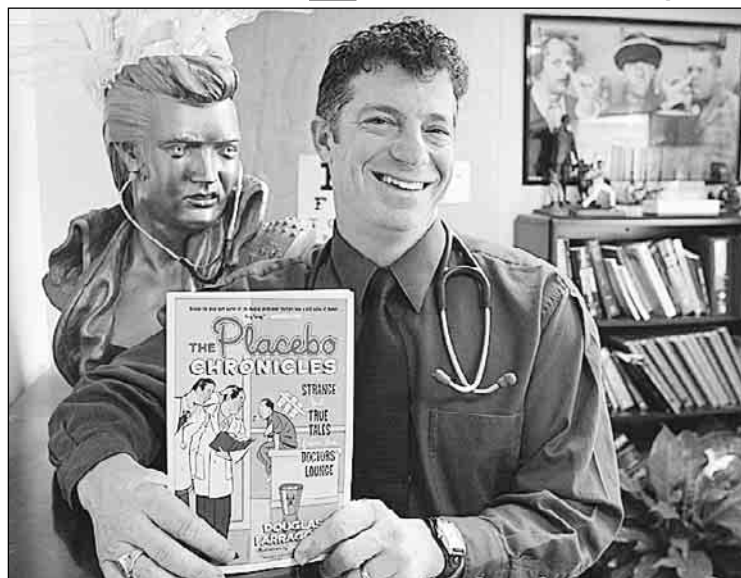

But Dr. Douglas Farrago, the journal's creator and editor, wants to expand his readership to a general audience, betting that patients as well as doctors will guffaw at gross-out stories about malodorous infections, rivers of nasty pus, foreign objects in bodily orifices and uncontrolled flatulence.

Farrago's new book, "The Placebo Chronicles," is a compilation of jokes, anecdotes, illustrations and fake ads from the magazine that the family physician started five years ago.

Likened to a Mad magazine for docs, its goal was to point out some of the problems with medicine and have a few laughs at the same time.

Farrago hopes the book will attract a lay readership that will be fascinated and entertained by his juvenile humor and satirical inside view of the profession.

"I'm giving people the backstage pass to the rock concert of medicine," he said, "and I think it's good for medicine in the long run. And if I give medicine the enema it deserves,

I'm OK with that."

Besides the magazine, the book and the Web site, Farrago, 40, puts out the Placebo Gazette, a biweekly newsletter delivered for free online, and prepares radio monologues for his fictitious WKOM, which stands for King of Medicine. Most of the journal material is contributed by a network of hundreds of physicians around the country.

His ground rules are simple: The stories must be true, they cannot depict harm to a patient and there can be no breach of patient confidentiality.

His writings target HMOs, drug companies and medical malpractice insurers. But he worries sometimes that he's not getting enough negative feedback, especially from "snooty doctors" who might be expected to take exception to the journal's tone.

"Hopefully, this book will get out there and ruffle some feathers," he said. JERRY HARKAVY (AP)

Musical History: Silk Road Journey

4 He's still the coolest classical musician around, with a name like a rap song and some mad cello skillz. Yo-Yo Ma joins the international collective (for whom he acts as artistic director) Silk Road Ensemble, whose instruments include the zither-like "qanun," the "erhu," a Chinese bowed lute and the Mongolian horsehead fiddle. This performance explores the shifting musical colors and different but connected cultures that lay along the famed ancient trade route known as the Silk Road.

Ma founded the Silk Road Ensemble to explore how music and ideas migrate.

TWISTS | Ian Somerhalder is keeping tight-lipped about the true fate of his character on ABC’s “Lost.” Despite the heroic efforts of Jack (Matthew Fox), Somerhalder’s Boone died in last Wednesday’s episode from injuries he suffered when a wrecked plane he was crawling around in slipped from a tall tree and fell to the ground. “I am hoping that I will [return],” Somerhalder said. “I am not sure that I am, but again it’s that really cheesy cliché-ing — it’s ‘Lost,’ so you truly never know.” Boone was the first major character to be killed off the show, which revolves around a group of plane-crash survivors stranded on a mysterious South Pacific island. Somerhalder, 26, said all the series’ regulars were told there was a chance their character could die during the course of the season. “We are on this island that is the most dangerous place,” said the former model. “It would be illogical if there weren’t casualties, and the cold hard reality is that people are going to die.” But Somerhalder isn’t headed for the unemployment lines anytime soon. He recently signed a deal with ABC/Touchstone. SUSAN KING (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Aviation towns give pilots a place to live with their planes

John Travolta has a thing for air-planes. He likes flying them. He likes hearing them. He likes seeing his Gulfstream II jet and Boeing 707 in the front yard.

Whenever he steps out, he hops into one of his jets, taxis on down the street to the community runway and lifts off, unfettered by auto-graph junkies or other drivers.

Ah, the joy of residing in Jumbolair Aviation Estates, an exclusive "fly-in community" in Ocala, Fla., with the largest paved, private airfield in the U.S.

Jumbolair is becoming a sanctuary for those who desire to live within shouting distance of their flying machines. The idea of parking one's wings next to one's abode is hardly novel; there are roughly 400 airparks across the country where homes with private hangars are built

"John [Travolta] said, 'I don't want to live on 350 acres by myself.'"

JEREMY THAYER

around tarmacs and airstrips.

But some fly-in communities rise above the rest. There's "Spruce Creek," in Daytona Beach, Fla., with a golf course, a clubhouse and a flying school; "Mountain Air" in Burnsville, N.C., which has a golf course, a clubhouse, a lodge and eight miles of hiking trails; and "Lajitas," in Lajitas, Texas, which has two golf courses, quail hunting grounds, equestrian activities, tennis courts, a spa and gourmet dining.

Then there's Jumbolair. Amenities? An Olympic-sized pool, a tennis center, conference halls, a ballroom, stables, several hundred acres of untrammelled pasture and the Jumbolair Inn and Country Club.

What makes Jumbolair the envy of all airparks is the runway — 7,550 feet long, 250 feet wide and elevated 100 feet, to prevent flooding during downpours. At the north end is a landing pad. Ground lighting runs along the sides for night owls. Taxiways lead to the pilots' homes.

Ex-model Terri Jones-Thayer and husband Jeremy Thayer are developing Jumbolair together. The name is a blend of the African word for elephant, "Jumbo," and "lair," a den of animals. Jones-Thayer and her ex-husband, Arthur Jones, founder of Nautilus, once used the property as a rescue for African wildlife. After they divorced, Terri married Jeremy, who bought out Arthur's share of the property.

In 2000, the couple put the land up for sale. John Travolta "looked at it and he loved it," Thayer said. "But then John said, 'I don't want to live on 350 acres by myself. If you ever decide to develop it into an aviation community, I'll be your first buyer.'" And he was.

Once Jumbolair's 125 homes are completed, Wayne Chernicky, owner of Shake's Frozen Custard, will be one of the fortunate few with homes along the airstrip. "Even with a hundred homes in this community, it will still be homey," he said on a visit to the site. There is a growl and a rumble from above, a plane on final approach. "Like I said, it will be very private and serene."

Royal Wedding

Former Associated Press royal family reporter LESLIE SHEPHERD was online Friday to discuss Prince Charles' wedding | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Why ever didn't Charles and Camilla plight their troth when they first met? It would have saved them (and countless others) much grief.

Many reasons. They were quite young at the time, in their early 20s. Charles dithered and dithered and then went to sea for eight months with the Royal Navy without proposing. While he was gone, Camilla got back together again with her off-and-on boyfriend Andrew Parker Bowles, who did propose.

Also, there was the small issue at the time (remember, this was the 1970s) that the Princess of Wales needed to be a virgin.

Isn't it true that if Charles does not become king, Queen Elizabeth's oldest surviving son will become king, not one of her grandsons?

If the queen outlives Charles (which is entirely possible, given that her mother lived to be well over 100), the next in line to the throne are Charles' two sons, the queen's grandsons, Prince William followed by his younger brother Prince Harry. Then comes the queen's second son, Prince Andrew (aka the Duke of York) and his two daughters, princesses Beatrice and Eugenia.

I regret to tell you that I could actually go on. ... I lose track someplace after Viscount Linley (the queen's nephew).

Princess Diana's brother and his family were invited? Doesn't that seem to be in very bad taste?

Heck, the bride's former husband and his current wife will be there, as will four of Charles' former girlfriends. How many more rings could there be in this circus tent?

We see lots of pictures, but what's the take on Camilla's personality? Or don't the royals have personalities?

She is a very traditional English countrywoman who likes horses, gardening and other outdoorsy things. I think you will see more and more of her personality emerge as she takes a larger public role.

What Metro Eating Policy?

ALTHOUGH METRO advertises a no-eating policy in its trains, I have seen more and more tourists and non-frequent riders holding coffee and sodas or eating doughnuts or sandwiches while on the trains as well as walking through stations. At my stop, Foggy Bottom, Starbucks even had the nerve to place a store right at the top of the escalator inside the George Washington University Hospital. Every morning and during the evenings when I go home, I see people riding down with coffee in their hands or going through the turnstiles drinking. I know with the current security concerns for terror activities, eating policy enforcement may be slackened a bit, but if Metro's going to have a policy, its employees should enforce it.

'Influence': An Excuse To Call Celebrities News

President Bush, JAMIE FOXX and Martha Stewart have all made Time Magazine's list of the world's 100 most influential people. The eclectic list, which hits newsstands on Monday, also includes Oprah Winfrey, Hilary Swank, Jay-Z, Jon Stewart and Clint Eastwood (who's profiled by Sean Penn). "It really shows the breadth of human endeavor," Time's Managing Editor Jim Kelly said. "Influence can be defined in a myriad of ways." (AP)

Giving Up Your Dreams Can Be Extremely Fulfilling

PAT SAJAK, 58, and VANNA WHITE, 48, say "Wheel of Fortune" will be the last stop in their careers. "I'm at peace with what my obituary's going to say," said Sajak. Both once had other aspirations, until "Wheel" become a TV behemoth. But they're OK with that. They're paid well and work just a few days a month. "I don't have much patience for quasi-celebrities that complain about their success," Sajak said. Neither has set a retirement date. (AP)

Acknowledging one's role in the world is the first step towards acceptance.

FAINT PRAISE

Is 'Earthy' the New 'Equine'?

JOAN RIVERS, one of about 800 guests at Prince Charles and Camilla's wedding reception on Saturday, is giving the Duchess of Cornwall lingerie. First, she'd jokingly offered to give the bride a lingerie shower. "She thought that was hilarious, and she said 'Well, send the things,'" Rivers said Sunday. "She's a very earthy, funny woman. You can swear in front of her." There won't be a shower, but Rivers said she plans to send Camilla some lingerie. (AP)

We know Joan's a friend, but can't anyone call Camilla something nicer than "earthy"?

The ceremony went smoothly, the guests were all smiles and the couple's jitters seemed sweetly endearing. As PRINCE CHARLES and CAMILLA, THE DUCHESS OF CORNWALL, began their married life Sunday on a Scottish honeymoon, even Britain's hypercritical press stopped carping long enough to join in the good will. Charles and Camilla began their quiet Scottish honeymoon with a visit to Crathie Parish Church, above, and then headed back to his Balmoral estate. (AP)

'I Suffered, So Now This Is Important to Me'

Author TOM CLANCY, he of "Patriot Games" and "The Hunt for Red October" fame, wants people to see life a little more clearly. To that end, he has donated $2 million to fund a professorship in ophthalmology at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. The first doctor to hold the seat, Dr. Terrence P. O'Brien, has treated the writer, who was diagnosed in 2001 with a rare eye condition. (AP)

Fame, You Two-Faced Hussy

JEFF VARNER, who was bumped from "Survivor" in 2001, will join WGHP, the Fox affiliate based in High Point, N.C., as a weekend anchor. Varner has a journalism degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Still, "I have the label of reality-show contestant tattooed across my face," he told the News & Record. "I have a journalism degree, the experience, and I can write better than most producers. But I know I have to work three times as hard because credibility is a big issue." (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something is about to get under way, and you don't want to be left out. You have a great deal to offer — and even more to gain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Now is no time to keep secrets, particularly from love partners and other special people in your life. Try to reach a consensus of sorts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even a major disagreement can result in ultimate good for those involved, particularly if you are willing to make an extra effort.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) All eyes are likely to be on you when your turn comes; now is not the time to back down. Be strong, aggressive in your attempts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Organization is the key to success. Don't let someone try to fool you into believing there's order in all the chaos.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Hobbies are highlighted, so you won't want to waste any time when it's your turn to indulge in a favorite activity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You and a partner may experience a little friction as a result of an inequitable distribution of responsibility. Be fair.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Someone close to you will take you very much by surprise — and you'll be looking forward to a repeat performance very soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) What you seek at the workplace may not be available to you right away. Home affairs can supply you with a good deal of solace.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take the initiative and you may well surprise those who supposedly have all the power. In no time, you may be in line for a promotion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Potential is increasing, particularly on the job. Don't try to go against your own internal rhythms; trust those little voices.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Practicality is a must, particularly where conflicting needs and a sudden desire are concerned. Don't get too far off base.
